MAKING THE CASES, WOMEN ARE LAID WASTE

VENICE, Italy, Oct. 19.—At least 25 persons were killed in an earthquake which shook northeastern Italy and touched the northwestern section of Yugoslavia and a corner of Austria yesterday. Property damage in the Italian area was extensive and all the dead reported were from that sector.

Fifteen were killed in the Italian province of Friuli. The earthquake killed one and injured six at Coniaco. Several hundred homes, churches and even castles were knocked down.

Thousands of persons in night clothes rushed into the open and saved the rest of the night outside their homes. Many of those who had automobiles were killed, and many of the injured were taken to the hospital.

TROOPS RUSHED AS HINDU RIOT DEATHS GROW

The rioting continued through the night and the troops kept order.

Latest disturbing feature of the rioting was the spread of the riot to the densely populated mill town where rioters were kept open Sunday to keep the workers occupied.

The section is mainly populated by Hindus who yesterday fled upon hearing the news of rioting. The rioting was the worst since the British occupation of the area.

IS THERE ENOUGH ROOM?

The city board of health is within its rights, and also in the line of its duty, in deciding to increase overcrowding conditions in living quarters in Edmonton. Since the conditions may be now, it is matter of common knowledge that they were bad last winter, so that regulations to increase the number of sanitary conditions were either suspended or ignored. As the population has continued to grow out of proportion to the available housing, the probability is that cold weather will find the situation as undesirable as it was last winter unless something is done to remedy the situation.

If no remedy can be found, and it is necessary to permit the conditions of last winter to be repeated, it is the city council, not the board of health, which should take the responsibility. The board, by making the proposed investigation and telling council and public whether or not at present the conditions are so overcrowded, will put itself in the clear as doing its duty in the circumstances.

Allowance will of course have to be made for the fact that the population of the city who are now in other parts of the province working. It is in the cold months the city population reaches the maximum—unfortunately, the time when overcrowding is the greatest menace to health.

SCRIP FIGURES

Officials report there was a great rush to cash "property scrip" last Friday, Saturday and Sunday, the monthly pay-off days. A month ago $140,000 of the $240,000 of certificates were presented and redeemed. Most of the remaining $60,000 worth probably disappeared from circulation into the wallets of owner-keepers, a group which is being presented for payment last week.

Of the certificates redeemed a month ago, the announcement given to the press states, "The average redemption was $100 per certificate. W. A. Fallois said $90 municipal districts had applied for scrip to use in payment for road-work. From the present situation it is gathered they were given $80 apiece on the average."

The amount of scrip outstanding Thursday morning would amount to approximately $121,000, approximately half the amount issued two months ago—including the $60,000 worth which failed to turn up for redemption last month.

This no doubt was what the Premier had in mind when he said at Coramotion, "If people do not co-operate any further than that with the dividend principle and use their own Alberta credit, it is possible that in six months or maybe three months I will have to throw up my hands and say I can do nothing for you."

Whether due to a lack of co-operative spirit or to other causes, the disappointment of the Premier can be understood. The certificates have made a very poor showing, revealing the large predictions with which it was launched, and the efforts to give a currency, scrip has turned out to be a "flop."

TOO MUCH OF A GOOD THING

The civic election campaign is to be staged this year in the interesting, entertaining, but very unexciting and unexciting manner that has become customary in Edmonton. There are to be twenty-one campaign meetings, with every meeting a routine for anything billed in advance.

Last year the candidatorial vaudeville performance ran through eighteen routine exercises. The stand that the candidates took was longer, and the performers may be even more numerous. A pleasant and quiet protestants time in this respect for the candidates, the number of the voters who do not absent themselves from these gatherings.

With twelve vacancies to be filled, there may be fifty candidates in the field, which means fifty speeches for an audience to listen to at one sitting. At two minutes per speaker the meetings would last an hour and a half, fifteen minutes each, with no allowance for showing one speaker off the platform and bringing another on. Allowing for a five-minute rest period for the speaker who loses his way or gets stuck in a metaphor, as per established custom, the patient voter who starts listening at eight o'clock will say if he gets home at midnight.

That he will have learned much about civic affairs in the interval there is no chance.

His recollection of the evening will be one of a long procession of speakers, with the speaker, perhaps some ladies interspersed—clambering upon the platform to blur what previous speakers had said, ask him to vote for them, and dash frantically for the door.

If the object is to give candidates a fair chance to tell the electors what are their ideas and plans in regard to the city's business, we should have a number of meetings with a half the number of speakers at each meeting. One just can't digest three or four dozen speeches in one evening.

WHAT BELGIUM DID

Belgium, the pivot of Europe, has lost its position as a neutral country, and has been forced by her abrupt and alarming decision to resume her status of pre-war neutrality.

Its new policy, indeed, is in direct violation of the spirit and essence of every treaty preserving the security of Europe by mutual guarantee. In 1910 the major nations at Versailles resolved to prevent any future danger to Europe by uniting their military forces in vindication of Belgian integrity, coupled with a pledge of automatic support to France in the event of aggression. The withdrawal from the League of the United States, which was to be a party to this convention, rendered the ambitious scheme ineffectual.

Belgium then became the coveted prize of European diplomacy, and the French government purchased Belgium's friendship by an offer of unexampled generosity. After striving to assume control of the Duchy of Luxembourg, she suddenly altered her motives to permit Belgium to become involved in this strategic territory. Now, when Prussian bayonets are again beginning to bristle along the French frontier, Belgium has ostentatiously renounced her covenant with her ally. This act symbolizes the increasing demoralization which has seized upon the European nations.

It is not easy to understand what advantages Belgium expects to receive by this reversal. She forfeits the possibility of instant protection by the British Empire, and the loss of Great Britain ought to maintain Belgian independence, a condition indispensable to her own economic survival. And she is even now devoting himself, with patient dexterity and consummate skill, to weaving the fabric of a new Locarno Pact whereby a definite agreement, the peace and stability of Europe, and German animosities may prelude a general European appeasement. That fabric is rent and tattered, and the spirit of Locarno definitely spurned.

The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

Dr. Hans Ziemer's book, "Rats, Lice and History," discussed in the last month's issue, has a notable omission. It fails to discuss the most loathsome rat of all, the two-legged "labor rat."

An investigation into Labor and Education by a U. S. Senate sub-committee is supplying the needed details of how the labor rat lives and moves and has his being. It isn't very dry reading, though it is necessary to know how violations of civil liberty are engineered by those who conduct labor espionage and carry out strike-breaking.

From the name of the Railway Audit and Inspection Company, you'd imagine that its work consisted of inspecting records and making audits. It does some regular auditing work and carries out the inspection of elevators, but its important work is the auditing of the company which helped to swell the $132,000 gross profit the company made in 1912-13, consisted of labor espionage and strike-breaking.

Through the efforts of the vice-president and four other executives of the company are now cited for contempt, for refusing to testify before the committee, and although numerous books and records of the company were turned over and committed to the waste-paper basket before the enquiry opened, the Committee has secured some useful revelations of the company's work in rating on labor. Employees of the company on the witness stand were confronted with many of the terms of the company's rating. They showed stimulating refreshers to the flagging memories of the witnesses.

Among the "auditing and inspection work" carried out by the company was:

Supplying strike guards with guns.

Furnishing machine guns, tear gas and camouflage.

Preventing men from drench the house of a company official with red paint, so that the blame would fall on the strikers.

Supplying men to pump live steam on pickets.

Charging a wire fence with electricity, so that a striker was electrocuted.

Preventing men from working in industrial plants, gain the confidence of union men and induce them to act as spies on the union activities of their friends and fellow workers.

Incite violence to scare company officials into hiring more of their number.

Among a list of 41 clients of the concern were American Aluminum Company, Burden Milk Company, Pennsylvania Railway, Western Union, Westinghouse Electric, General Motors Corporation, Pennsylvania Greyhound Lines and Chase National Bank.

Two other strike-breaking agencies, National Corporation Service and Allen Corporation, Service also engaged in forming company unions and providing ready-made bylaws for such.

Lake Erie Chemical Company and Maville Manufacturing Company were named as the chief sources for supplying of poison gases for use in labor disputes. The Anthracite Institute admitted through its attorney, the purchase of $15,000 worth of tear gas and noxious gas, with the intention of dumping it in closed mines to drive out any miners who engage in "boycotting" coal.

Some of the operators of gas quarries, fearing a public outcry in the event of serious loss of life, so the plan had been devised.

In its advertising matter the Lake Erie Company says its gas causes "violent nausea and vomiting, sense of suffocation as if several men were sitting on your chest, and chest and head. Once rioters have been subdued with K.O. gas, they will not invite another dose because of the memory of the last experience becomes very dim indeed."

In view of the high quality of the gas you can understand the patriotic impulse that led the New England Textile Institute to advertise in forecasting a strike in the textile industry to write to head office, "I hope this strike develops and it will be a damn bad day for us. We need the money."

They are not a high minded class of men, these things which have been done by men, as strike-breakers, as "hookers" and "links" and "bribees." But they have their pride.

One of the men called to the stand was Sam "Chowderhead" Cohen who has been in the business of labor espionage and strike-breaking for twenty years past. Not a pretty fellow to look at, weighing 265 pounds, a neck on him as big round as his head and his nose flattened down on his face from early affairs, he frankly announced that he was a labor spy as strike breaker has criminal records, and "Chowderhead" is one of the most distinguished among the distinguished men of the industry.

His record shows fourteen arrests and five convictions on charges ranging from larceny to kidnapping and conspiracy.

Newspaper readers who were memories will remember that Mr. Cohen was arrested on suspicion of complicity in the murder of Vivian Gordon a few years ago.

Mr. Cohen's pretention of pride still remains on record. Said he, "Everybody knows that I don't go in for burping people off. My racket is being a box-man."

Don't think from the phrase and from the appearance of "Chowderhead" Cohen's meek that "being a box-man" has anything to do with the noble art of boxing. It is gansterese for being a safe-cracker.

Our Secret Service at Ottawa is an old politician's club, not an investigating body. We have to look to Senate investigations in Washington to learn how and with what manner of means, great industrial corporations interfere with the lawful progress of trades unionism on this continent.

campaign waged by rival war lords, is an armed camp, preparations having been made to resist attack by the advancing Canadian army.

Size cars of army and navy are being placed on the city streets as part of the improvement program.

Catarrhal Deafness

By DOCTOR FRANK MCCOY

Practically every case of deafness not resulting from accident may be at least partially cured by dietary measures. Complete deafness does not come on suddenly without warning as there is usually a gradual loss of the sense of hearing covering a period of several years before one becomes conscious that he can hear no more as formerly.

There are a few cases where the ear-drums have been ruptured or some other portion of the hearing apparatus destroyed by accident; there are also a few cases where the sense of hearing is interfered with by a retention of wax in the external ear passage; and some are caused by a chronic engorgement of the tonsils, which may produce deafness as the inflammation may spread along the Eustachian tube, which connects the ear and the throat. However, most cases of deafness are the result of chronic catarrh. I believe that over ninety per cent of all cases are due to this cause.

An unusually severe cold in the nose and throat may cause such a change that it seems as though the deafness has come on quite abruptly, which is seldom true, as the chronic state of catarrh preceding the cold has been developing for a long time. The Eustachian tubes have become slowly becoming inflamed and filled with mucus, until finally only the cold is needed to cause the passages to be entirely obstructed.

SIDE GLANCES—By George Clark

By DOCTOR FRANK MCCOY

Practically every case of deafness not resulting from accident may be at least partially cured by dietary measures. Complete deafness does not come on suddenly without warning as there is usually a gradual loss of the sense of hearing covering a period of several years before one becomes conscious that he can hear no more as formerly.

There are a few cases where the ear-drums have been ruptured or some other portion of the hearing apparatus destroyed by accident; there are also a few cases where the sense of hearing is interfered with by a retention of wax in the external ear passage; and some are caused by a chronic engorgement of the tonsils, which may produce deafness as the inflammation may spread along the Eustachian tube, which connects the ear and the throat. However, most cases of deafness are the result of chronic catarrh. I believe that over ninety per cent of all cases are due to this cause.

An unusually severe cold in the nose and throat may cause such a change that it seems as though the deafness has come on quite abruptly, which is seldom true, as the chronic state of catarrh preceding the cold has been developing for a long time. The Eustachian tubes have become slowly becoming inflamed and filled with mucus, until finally only the cold is needed to cause the passages to be entirely obstructed.

CALGARY BOYS' 6-3-3 COURT

Fine Plays Lead to Two Field Goals in Third Period Rally

Lack of Alternates Proves Hard on Local Gridders—Calgary Shows Class—H. Sutton Plays Great Game

Overcoming a 3-0 lead with a spirited rally in the third quarter, Calgary Boys registered a 6-3 victory over Edmonton H-Grads in a scheduled Alberta Football Union Edmonton at Rensselaire Park Saturday.

Before apparently popular Blanche H-Grads, with only five substitutes, staged a courageous battle in an attempt to thwart Calgary's endeavors to avenge a previous 14-5 drubbing at the hands of the Edmonton boys, but Carl Cronin's smooth working youngsters had too much power and reserve force, when it was needed.
